

“Ancient Walls, Modern Spaces: A 17th-century palace in the heart of Saint-Rémy-de-Provence has been beautifully and conscientiously renovated as a boutique hotel...Opened in May 2015, the property has a design aesthetic that tends toward minimalist white and sand-colored hues to showcase the original architecture, but the furnishings tend toward the soft and cozy...The most stunning feature is the hotel’s central staircase, with high sandstone arches.” (The New York Times, Sunday, August 14, 2016).
